PREMIER ARRIVES IN GERMANY

General Ion Antonescu, Accompanied by His Foreign Minister Prince Costin Sturza, and the German Minister to Bucharest, Are Greeted at the Austrian Border Town by Hitler's Chief Of Protocol and Other Officials

A STEP IN DIPLOMATIC MEDITERRANEAN DRIVE

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 21.—General Ion Antonescu, premier of Rumania, arrived in Germany today, bringing his country to the fore as the probable next recruit for the expanding Axis alliance.

Accompanied by his foreign minister, Prince Costin Sturza, and the German minister to Rumania, Wilhelm Fabricius, the Rumanian premier was greeted at the Austrian border town of Bruck by the German chief of protocol, Baron Alexander von Doennerberg, and other high Reich officials.

Since Antonescu recently conferred in Rome with Italian Premier Mussolini, observers presumed that the groundwork already has been prepared for Rumania to follow Hungary's footsteps in joining the 10-year military, political and economic compact with Germany, Italy and Japan.

Vienna, once proud capital of Nazi annexed Austria and scene of yesterday's addition of Hungary to the now four-power pact, again became just another German provincial city as the array of diplomats departed.

Adolf Hitler, Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German High Command, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, the Nazi foreign minister, left last night.

Observers viewed Hungary's formal enrollment within the Axis as another step in a diplomatic drive toward the Mediterranean which—with the addition of other southeastern European nations—might open an Axis highway all

RAIDERS HALTED BY GROUND GUNS

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 21.—Terrific anti-aircraft fire was reported today to have taken the sting out of the Nazis' second successive night of "all out" raiding on Britain's vital Midlands and the government described the attacks as "intermittent and on a minor scale."

Apparently trying to strike another blow similar to that at Coventry a week ago, swarms of raiders poured over an east Midlands town during the night but were said to have been dispersed by ground guns after less than two hours of incendiary bomb-dropping, first step in the technique of total air war.

London's sirens sounded two daylight alerts in quick succession today, shortly after raiders were reported over scattered towns in England. The raids were of short duration.

British bombers hammered the German inland port of Duisburg-Rohrt in a large scale attack last night, the air Ministry announced.

Other British air squadrons attacked German air bases and the "invasion ports" of Lorient, Cherbourg, Dunkerque and Ostend, the communiqué said.

Capitulation of Belgium By King Leopold Defended in Address by Ambassador Cudahy

New York, Nov. 21.—(P)—John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium, says King Leopold ordered the capitulation of his forces before the German army because of a situation for which there was no alternative.

For five days before the surrender, Cudahy said in a nationwide broadcast last night, both the British and French general staffs had been kept fully informed and knew that the Belgian army had no other course.

Holiday Conflict Is Break for Convicts

Pittsburgh, Nov. 21.—(P)—The two Thanksgiving day celebrations brought about a "break" for inmates of the Allegheny county jail and county workhouse. Hearty holiday meals were ordered for them today and for next Thursday.

But prisoners at Western Penitentiary weren't quite so well off. They'll be allowed one next Thursday. The main item on the bill of fare will be roast pork—Warden Stanley P. Ashe says it's their favorite dish.

PITTSBURGH TO GET LITTLE HELP ON WATER PLAN

Some Officials of "Upstate" Cities, Including Butler, Oil City and Titusville, Express Interest But Unwilling to Offer Financial Support

NO DECISION REACHED

Pittsburgh, Nov. 21.—(P)—An airing of views on the possibility of developing new sources of water supply for Pittsburgh and other western Pennsylvania communities brought forth little assurance that Pittsburgh could expect "outside help" in financing a $500,000 preliminary survey for the plan.

While some officials of "upstate" cities at a hearing yesterday that they were interested in new water sources, none was ready to guarantee financial support at this time.

The mainspring of the plan is a proposal by Mayor Cornelius D. Scully of Pittsburgh for a $100,000,000 reservoir system to bring to the steel city fresh water from northwestern Pennsylvania streams. Scully claims that for household and industrial use the city needs a better supply of water than it now obtains from the Allegheny river.

George M. Thompson, mayor of Butler, said industries in the Butler area were "greatly interested" in an adequate supply of fresh water and might help finance the survey. Oil City spokesmen, including L. H. Gavin, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce there and also secretary of the Upper Allegheny Improvement Association, commented favorably on the project.

Mayor Fred Whipple and City Engineer Roy L. Phillips, both of Meadville, said they could not promise that their city would give financial help. Phillips said Meadville (Turn to Page Fifteen)

PLANE PLANT STILL TIED UP BY STRIKE

Downey, Calif., Nov. 21.—(P)—Government negotiators, striving to iron out a labor dispute which has tied up the big Vultee aircraft plant—and $84,000,000 in military contracts—for nearly a week, still were unsuccessful today.

One of the government representatives, N. Arnold Tolle, assistant to Defense Commission Labor Coordinator Sidney Hilman, left for Washington—but without any announcement regarding progress of the discussions. L. W. Michener, west coast head of the striking union, the CIO National Automobile Workers, headed for Atlantic City and the CIO's national convention.

Major Sidney Simpson, representing the War Department, last night adjourned until today a labor-management parley which has been under way since Monday noon with only occasional respites.

VICE COMMANDER OF BRITISH AIR FORCES TAKEN

Rome, Nov. 21.—(P)—The capture of the new vice commander of the British air forces in the middle east, Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd, was announced today by the British high command.

Tudor, former commander of the British balloon barrage forces, and six other men, including four officers, were captured in Sicily when a British Wellington plane made a forced landing, its communiqué said.

He was reported on route from England to take over the post when his plane went down.

Fascist groups smashed repeated Greek attacks along the Albanian front, particularly in the Koriza sector, the daily communiqué said.

The Italians said seven British planes were shot down in flames in an air battle over Egypt. The high command acknowledged the loss of four planes in bombing activities in Greece, three in the Egyptian battle and another in bombing activities in East Africa.

London, Nov. 21.—(P)—The air ministry announced today that Air Marshal Owen Tudor has been taken prisoner by the Italians.

The announcement said that the marshal had "been reported missing while crossing the Mediterranean by air" and added, "It is now learned that he is a prisoner in Italian hands."

Boyd, who was promoted to the post of air marshal November 8, was appointed deputy to the chief air officer in the middle east command in sweeping changes in the Royal Air Force announced No.

ITALIAN BASES ARE IN DANGER

Greek Forces Reported to Have Reached Outskirts of City of Koriza With Added Columns Marching on Other Important Concentration Town Where Huge Stores of War Materials Are Assembled

LARGE AMOUNT OF EQUIPMENT SEIZED

Athens, Nov. 21.—(P)—Greek forces were reported to have reached the outskirts of the besieged Italian base city of Koriza in Albania this morning.

At the same time, in the coastal sector of the fighting zone, Greek columns were said to be marching rapidly on another important Italian base, Argirocastro, also in Albania.

Italian resistance in that zone was reported to have almost totally collapsed.

Latest information from the front said the Greeks were within six miles of Argirocastro, which is said to rank equally with Koriza in strategic value.

It was on these two cities that the Italians had based their drive into Greece. Huge stores of war materials had been assembled in both cities.

A thrust through the center of the Italian lines, putting the Fascist forces to hasty flight at a point six miles within Albania, was the previous high spot of Greek success reported today all along the 100-mile battlefield from the Ionian Sea to Koriza.

A Greek government spokesman said the central breakthrough occurred at Mertzani, Albania, west of the Aos river and northwest of Konitsa, Greece.

Leaving munitions, arms, tanks, automobiles and laggard troopers behind, the Italians are retreating so rapidly that the bayonet-brandishing Greeks are hard put to keep up with them, he said.

The Greek High Command listed 200 automobiles among the booty captured.

In the north, the Greek command also announced, its hardy mountaineer soldiers had won the summits of the Morava range southeast of Koriza, and were

Ohio-Pennsylvania Border Town Has Two Thanksgivings

Thanksgiving Day in Orangeville (Ohio-Pa.) depends on which side of town you live. On the Ohio side of the border town, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Clark, at left, celebrate the carving of the turkey on Nov. 21, Thanksgiving Day for that state. But Pennsylvanians like Virginia Burke and Edward Hyde, living across town, must let their mouths water until Nov. 28, date set by Gov. Arthur H. James of the Quaker state.

Chief Executive Breaks Personal Holiday Tradition by Passing Up His Annual November Visit to Warm Springs, Ga.

GUEST LIST IS SMALL

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(P)

President Roosevelt worshipped today in the Episcopal chapel of the Hudson valley village in which he was reared and heard an admonition from the Rev. Frank E. Wilson that Americans must pass on to others their blessings of peace and security.

The chief executive and members of his family participated in a special Thanksgiving communion service.

The regular Episcopal Thanksgiving service was followed, with the rector reading from St. James 1:16: "Let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath; for the wrath of man killeth not, but the righteousness of God."

Speaking later in the House of Commons, Prime Minister Churchill expressed a "measure of confidence" that Britain would be able to repel the Axis invaders in Egypt.

In a passage answering questions on Britain's war aims, Churchill proclaimed his government's intention to keep parliamentary institutions "vital and active" even "under enemy fire."

Churchill declared that he looked forward "with confidence and hope" to the "time when we ourselves shall be as well armed as our antagonists" and beyond that to the time when "the arsenals and training grounds and science of the British empire" will "bring victory and deliverance to all mankind."

King George paid a tribute to United States aid to Britain both in his opening speech today and in another pronouncing the old session yesterday. The latter was read by Lord Simon, the Lord Chancellor.

SECRET OF BOMB SIGHT RETAINED

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(P)—President Roosevelt said through a secretary today that the nation's most efficient bomb sight remained a military secret and was not being released to Britain along with 46 bombing planes.

Washington, Nov. 21.—(P)—Huge long range bombers and bomb sights to go with them have made up a new installment today in the program of aid to Britain.

The army announced that 26 four-motor consolidated bombers were being made available for British purchase, disclosed that the Sperry bombsight had been released and indicated that 20 "flying fortresses" might be the next installment of aerial assistance.

Proposals calling for the adoption of this policy have been under consideration in the resolutions committee since CIO's convention to determine policies they could follow after John L. Lewis' retirement from CIO's presidency.

As the session neared the business of electing officers, probably

George Cohan's smash Broadway stage hit provides her with an ideal vehicle in which to portray the joy and romance of youth, to sing favorite old-time ballads as well as streamlined modern songs. It presents opposite her Douglas McPhail, youthful baritone, who adds another smash performance to his laurels. And Judy ventures very successfully, too, into a few moments of poignant drama amid the comical battles of the scappy Kelly and Noonan families.

"HELLZAPPOPIN'" COMING

"Hellzapoppin'" is more than just a title. It is an apt one-word description of the revue which Olsen and Johnson will present at the Shea's theatre, Jamestown, one night only, Tuesday, December 10th, featuring Billy House and Eddie Carr.

WOMAN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH AT LOTTSVILLE

Mrs. Pearl Warner, 55 years old, of Ashville, N. Y., was seriously injured about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the car she was driving struck a bridge abutment near Lottsville on state route 957. At the Jamestown General Hospital, where she was taken following the accident, it was stated this morning that she has a fractured skull. Her condition was said to be fair.

According to Private J. R. Thompson, of the local sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, who investigated the accident, Mrs. Warner was traveling west toward Corry when the accident occurred. He said she had traveled along a straight stretch of road for a distance of about one thousand feet before going off the road on the left side. Her car struck a telephone pole and then crashed into a bridge abutment.

The pole was snapped in two and the wires were broken, interrupting telephone service in the area for some time.

Private Thompson said Mrs. Warner was still in the car when he arrived at the scene. She was taken to the Jamestown hospital by two hunters, Robert Williams, of Sugar Grove, and William Duff, of Warren, who emerged from a patch of woods shortly after the accident to discover another man attempting to lift Mrs. Warner from the wrecked machine.

Seed Corn Needs Drying—The poor season for maturing corn has left much of it carrying a high percentage of moisture. If corn to be used for seed goes through a hard freeze in its present condition, germination will be seriously injured, say agronomists of the Pennsylvania State College. Unusual care is needed this fall to insure rapid drying, or protection must be given against early freezes until the seed corn has thoroughly dried.

Clean House Chimneys—Brushes for cleaning house chimneys can be made from pine branches with long ropes attached at each end. Penn State agricultural engineers say that the brush is started at the top of the chimney and let down and pulled up with the ropes.

Members of the Warren Kiwanis Club are starting plans to entertain the president of Kiwanis International, Mark Smith, of Thomason, Ga., who will visit the local service club during the latter part of January, as was announced following the regular meeting of the group, held yesterday noon at the Y. W. C. A.

A committee of Kiwanis and their wives was named to make plans for the event, which promises to be the outstanding event on the club's calendar for the year. His talk, which outlined the method of raising flowers and the scientific advancements in the industry, proved very interesting and instructive. He traced the steps in raising such flowers as chrysanthemums and carnations, telling of the various diseases that must be combated and the care that must be exercised to assure good flowers.

Mr. Offerle was introduced by Earl Flory.

President Harris announced the following committee for the Saturday Evening Boys Club meeting this week: Dr. Elliott, Earl Flory, H. T. Flowers, J. H. Goldstein and Howard Good.

TIONESTA DAM GATES CLOSED TO MAKE TESTS

Gates at the intake of the diversion tunnel of the Tionesta creek control dam were closed early today, permitting the water in the dam to rise to a level of about 40 feet within the next week or ten days.

The water level, however, will depend on the rainfall in that section and the runoff of the melting snow in the woods in the Tionesta creek valley. A 40 foot stage would back the water up close to the railroad tracks at the saw mill at Nebraska.

Commenting on the reported closing of the gates, a member of the army engineer's staff at Pittsburgh stated that any closing at this time would be by the contractor for the probable purpose of testing valves. Although the work on the dam is far ahead of schedule and may be ready soon, the army has not yet accepted the dam, the staff member said.

Work on the dam has proceeded at a rapid pace during recent months and the project is practically completed. Painting of the interior of the lower building at the intake of the tunnel and some other minor jobs remain, but the entire job will soon be finished and the dam ready to turn over to the government, it was said.

Four or five employees will be engaged regularly at the dam following its completion. These employees will be appointed by the U. S. army engineers.

Otto Benson, 73, passed away at his home in Deerick street, Sheffield, at 6:20 o'clock Wednesday evening following an illness of many years duration.

Mr. Benson was married June 24, 1903, at Jamestown, N. Y., to Miss Albertina Peterson, of Kane, who survives alone, with one daughter, Bertha Benson, at home. PRIVATE AVIATION VALUABLE

The importance of private aviation to national defense is pointed out by Virgil S. King, manager of the Warren Airport who refers to the fact that the entire German air force was trained on gliders which are many times as inefficient and slow for training purposes as the modern light airplane which is uniquely American.

Mr. King states that no other nation in the world has ever enjoyed such a large reservoir of private fliers and private airplanes available for military use and training. "Only in the United States," he remarked today, "has the light plane manufacturing industry approached automobile proportions. At the present time nearly 800 light planes are being turned out every month and one manufacturer has recently expanded its production facilities to turn out 10,000 planes a year."

While these airplanes are not of a military type, Mr. King states, they are valuable for giving primary flight instruction to thousands of potential military pilots. "After all," he says, "the first fifty hours a man trains in the air are spent merely at learning how to look at the ground. These little ships do that efficiently, safely, and many times cheaper than larger and bulkier training planes."

The King Air Service for the past three months held a contract with the Civil Aeronautics board to train ten students under the Civilian Pilot Training program. For barely $300 the government is able to turn out a pilot with from 35 to 50 hours and a private license.

These pilots, 45,000 of which are being turned out this year, Mr. King says, are well grounded in the fundamentals of flight, engines, navigation and meteorology, as well as fully qualified to fly across country with passengers.

Mr. King feels that the C. P. T. P. is of inestimable value in building up this nation's defenses. He points out that students turned out by the C. P. T. program are many months ahead of the raw recruit entering as an Army Air Corps cadet and that the private pilots could be organized into fighting groups with much less primary training than ever before. The C. P. T. program, he points out, also reduces the tremendous cost of eliminating persons unfit for flight duty.

"America if lacking in other phases of defense," says Mr. King, "can be consoled with its tremendous private flying reserve with which it may build up its armed strength. The Civilian Pilot Training Program is certainly giving us a head start toward manning the 50,000 airplanes the president wants."

FEDERAL THANKSGIVING DAY

There is certainly little to be thankful for in the scrambled Thanksgiving day situation in Pennsylvania.

In accordance with the president's proclamation, 32 states and the District of Columbia are giving thanks today. But not Pennsylvania. Through the action of Governor James this commonwealth joins with 15 others scattered over the country, whose people, officially at least, will give thanks one week from today.

The nearest of these states is Connecticut to the north and North Carolina to the south. Today our business houses, schools, post office, etc., are open. The banks are closed as well as the stock exchanges tuned to New York.

In other words, today Pennsylvania is an island of nonconformity while millions all around us, some as close as Jamestown and other border towns, are giving thanks and eating turkey. One week hence the Keystone State will be enjoying a lonesome holiday.

This sort of thing is neither desirable nor necessary. Arguments in favor of the earlier date are apparently as good this year as they were in 1939—the longer interval before Christmas seems to have been of real benefit to retail business.

It is to be hoped that there will be no repetition of this year's conflict in the future!

Funny thing about some representatives at Washington—they work their heads off to get elected and when they get settled in the capitol they can't wait until congress adjourns.

The accidents of the hunting season best prove that many a person who has a hunting license has no license to hunt.

Green and Lewis seem to be getting together just about as fast as England and Germany.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The most embarrassing thing that has happened to a No. 158 that I know of happened right here in the suburbs.

He is 23 years old. His family is prominent in the community and comparatively well off. He was something of a football hero and just about a perfect physical specimen. He always has been quite a favorite in the neighborhood.

When Secretary of War Stimson plucked 158 out of the selective service fish bowl and made him No. 1 selected in his district and the lad announced that he was proud and ready to go immediately, the neighborhood went into an orgy of patriotism.

The young man was wined and dined. The American Legion post gave a banquet in his honor. So did the D. A. R. He made speeches at the high school and the nearby college he had attended.

He spoke solemnly from the pulpit of his church. His girl gave a romantic touch to the hysteria by announcing they were engaged to be married "immediately after Johnny comes back from training."

It went on for weeks.

Lost His Turn

FINALLY the lad made a visit to his local board to find out just how soon he would be called and discovered that 52 selected in his district had volunteered, had been classified and under the rules of selective service, had been given induction numbers ahead of him.

The chances are Johnny won't be called before next summer if then—and no amount of pleading or pull can get him ahead of the boys over whom no fuss was made—the boys who enlisted and were found suitable for Class 1-A and immediate call.

Johnny's only chance of escaping the jibes of his pals while he waits around to be called is to enlist and get accepted—for three years' service—in the regular Army. At least that's what the selective service officials tell me.

This enlistment of selectees by the hundreds of thousands has, by the way, borne out a prediction passed along in these columns many weeks ago, namely, that first year "calls" from the Army will get very few, if any, selectees who haven't enlisted, no matter what their order numbers are.

One draft official told me recently that he estimates more than 400,000 selectees (or men desiring to get into the regular armed forces) had enlisted or applied to their local boards for immediate induction since selective service became a certainty. And that he believes present trends indicate many more will be on the rolls by the time the Army is ready for them.

One of the principal reasons for enlistments by selectees, draft officials find, is that young men just out of college and not yet started on their professional careers are eager "to get it over with" before they take a turn at making their marks in the world.

Although no check has been made, it is thought that by far the greater number of selectees applying for immediate induction are young doctors, dentists, lawyers, engineers and tyros in other professions.

Another Rush Seen

ANOTHER rush of these young graduates to the colors is expected as soon as the colleges close their first term sessions in January. Practically an avalanche of enlistments is anticipated when the school year ends in June.

An interesting paradox which has put puzzled furrows in the heads of Army and draft officials is that although they have sought, by all means of publicity, to make Army life as attractive as possible, they have had to do everything in their power to prevent (until the Army can handle them) that rush to the colors that invariably comes with patriotic hysteria.

Entertainment For O. E. S. Drama Club Meeting Is Enjoyed

The November meeting of the Order of Eastern Star Drama Club was held at the Y. W. C. A. activities building last evening, with the president, Mrs. Hazel Chestnut, in charge of the business session.

The program for the evening was arranged by Mrs. Helen Braunschweiger and Mrs. Fannie Cogswell. "Mrs. Aubrey's Auction Sale," a comedy skit, was presented. Mrs. Braunschweiger, as the comic auctioneer, and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Headlund, as the deserted wife, with the lively bidding of Mrs. May Overturf, Mrs. Caroline Emery, Mrs. Martha Swick and Miss Esther Stohl, kept the audience highly entertained.

The second skit, "Those Landladies," with Mrs. Grace Schuler as Mrs. Dodus, the landlady, and Mrs. Headlund as the boarder, caused much fun.

Interesting games were enjoyed until the committee announced the serving of tea. The table was attractively appointed, with a grouping of autumn fruits and vegetables centering the table. Mrs. Lorraine Hulings and Miss Esther Stohl presided at the service.

The guests numbering over 70, were indebted to the following hostesses for their supervision and cooperation in making the entertainment a success: Helen Braunschweiger, May Overturf, Caroline Emery, Grace Schuler, Martha Swick, Alice Heitzel, Mary Elizabeth Headlund, Hazel Norris Milledge Barker, Jennie Hubbard, Fannie Cogswell, Lorraine Hulings and Esther Stohl.

The December meeting will be under the leadership of Mrs. Hazel Jorgenson and Mrs. Edna Eby.

Philomel Club Has Pleasing Program; Plans for December

The two-piano program arranged by Miss Lillian Larsen for Wednesday's open meeting of the Philomel Club brought out a large attendance despite rainy weather and counter attractions.

Mrs. Alie Russell, presiding, announced there will be no meeting next Wednesday because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

On the following Wednesday, December 4, there will be a combined business meeting and study session, the latter directed by Miss Florence Bassett.

Mrs. Charles Eaton will be in charge of the annual Christmas program on December 11, advanced to two o'clock because of the presence of the high school a capella choir under the direction of Carroll Fowler. Mrs. H. F. Clawson will head the hostesses for that day and a bake sale will be held to benefit the recently redecorated club kitchen.

Mrs. Russell spoke also of the value to the club of its Junior Philomel and of plans for an even younger group, girls under the age of 12 years.

Miss Larsen then took charge and with the assistance of Mrs. Eaton, Miss Gene Ezell, Mrs. Eugene Kuester, Mrs. W. M. Robertson, Miss Jean Robertson and Mrs. Peter Horning, presented a very entertaining program of two-piano compositions. In addition, Miss Larsen played accompaniments for two pleasing violin selections by Mrs. Pauline Patchen.

Mrs. Boris Waxman and her committee were in charge for the refreshments, served at tables attractively centered with harvest groupings of fruits and vegetables.

GOING completely air-minded on us, John Frederics creates a daring hat in "sky-high-pink" and shows it with a wool dress in "pilot blue" on a model who wears sky-high-pink nail polish. The mesh-net scarf goes over the head to form a crown for the collapsible brim. The scarf may be worn separately and tied in a dozen different ways.

The syrup is made by dissolving 2½ parts by volume of white granulated sugar in 1 part of water by volume. Add one-half teaspoon of cream of tartar for each 15 pounds of sugar. Heat only until the sugar is dissolved, but do not boil the syrup.

After the syrup has cooled to a lukewarm temperature, it can be placed in the feeders. The most satisfactory feeder is made from a good half-gallon friction-top pail.

Punch about 20 small holes near the center of the lid with a small nail.

Fill the pail with syrup and place it upside down over the opening in the inner cover. Place an empty super on the inner cover also, then put the cover on the super.

The lid of the feeder should fit tightly; otherwise the syrup will run out and drown the bees.

It is best to feed in the evening to prevent robbing. If the weather is warm, the bees should remove a half gallon of syrup from the feeder in 24 hours.

MANAGE PULLETS TO AVOID FALL MOLT

Many poultrymen have gone through the sad experience of a fall pullet molt. County Agent O. C. Tritt says that observance of sound management practices will in large measure avert the losses that invariably are associated with this lapse of production.

Often the molt is a short one, termed a partial molt which may affect only the neck feathers or part of the wing or body or both. Production may be halted for only a few weeks or a month. When a full body molt occurs, it may require as long as 12 weeks for the normal egg laying to be resumed.

Various causes may be responsible for molting. There is in fowls a hereditary factor known as winter pause which may affect production and which often asserts itself when pullets have been producing for two to four months. As a breeding factor that needs to be considered, it has been reduced in carefully managed breeding flocks until its effect is practically negligible.

Management is primarily at fault in most cases of fall molt, says Mr. Tritt. Extremely high production coupled with an insufficient intake of either mash or grain or both; losses on body weight as a result of poor feeding practices, parasites, or disease; an improperly fleshed body when production began because of forcing too rapid maturity or for reasons heretofore cited; and sudden changes in management are some of the factors responsible for fall molt.

Careful attention to details, day by day: an accurate knowledge of food intake and condition of the fleshing of the fowl's body; and correlation of these factors with the production rate, weather conditions, and length of natural daylight are the tools each poultryman has at hand to avert production losses caused by the effect of fall molt.

HOFF BUSINESS COLLEGE HEARS NOTED SPEAKER

At their assembly yesterday morning, Dr. John Brown, Jr., who is senior secretary for the national council of the Y. M. C. A., New York City, talked before the students and faculty of the Hoff Business College.

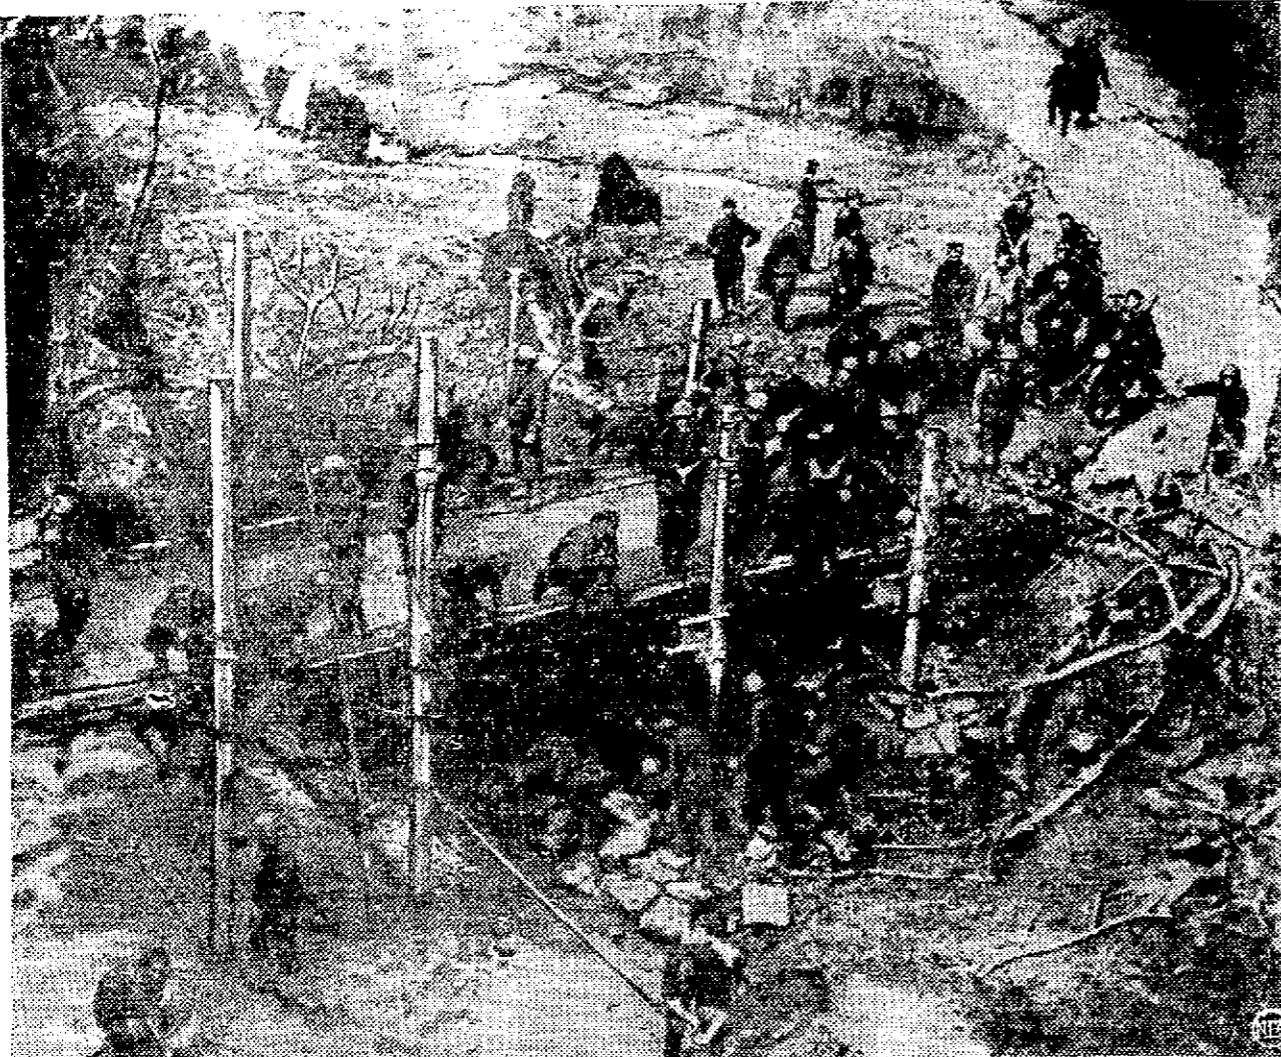

He took for his subject, "Being A Person," and vividly portrayed the part one's personality plays in the role of success. He developed the thought that since we are the product of the combined influences of all our past experiences, heredity and environment, we should therefore "take ourselves in hand" and not permit ourselves to just "drift." He also urged his listeners to continue in their development, since there is always something finer in one than yet expressed. He further stressed to live one's life with a purpose and to associate with a business that is producing something fine instead of the undesirable.

As his closing thought he urged everyone to take God into account in his life program, as this was just being sensible.

NEW MINORITY ENLISTMENT IS TAKEN BY NAVY

Receipt of authority from the Navy Department to enlist men at age 17 was announced today by the officer in charge, Navy recruiting headquarters in Buffalo.

Lieutenant Commander Eugene C. Burchett today announced that men applying for enlistment who have passed their 17th birthday and have not reached their 18th birthday may be enlisted to serve until the day prior to their 21st birthday, in what is termed a "minority enlistment." Others between the ages of 18 and 31 may enlist for the regular six year term.

That the "minority enlistment" authority was welcome news was evidenced by the activity at the local Navy recruiting station in the post office building, when, shortly after 9 o'clock, applicants between 17 and 18 commenced their physical and mental examination.

THANKSGIVING

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 28

This year charts in 320 years of unparalleled progress for America. No people have more reason to be thankful!

The year 1940---a year of great crisis, of sober, even terrifying thoughts for people all over the world, a year of humanity's greatest struggle for preservation --- brings in a Thanksgiving which for the American people has never been more symbolic in its imperishable image for free men.

Yes, we have a right to be thankful. We have a duty too---that our thankfulness be embodied in our determination to preserve those ideals which gave us Thanksgiving Day.

Penn State Captain Awarded Pivot Post; Drahos Is Repeater

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

Out of the tremendous struggle that was the 1940 football season emerged another All-American team for all the land to hail.

Picked with the aid and advice of coaches, scouts, officials and football writers of the nation the team is composed of men who fought to the last ditch in the line and of backs who didn't stop when their blockers were through.

Seniors all, the finesse that comes with the final year of college football failed to check their enthusiasm.

Because of their brilliance, they were marked men—prisoners of prestige. Coaches sat up nights scheming how to stop or get away from them. They were double and triple-teamed, yet they continued to storm and scale the heights until they reached the pinnacle.

Grand competitors rugged individualists who unhesitatingly wrapped themselves in the blanket of smooth team play are the young men comprising NEA's All-American team of 1940.

CREIGHTON BACK LEADS NATION'S YARD-GAINERS

Seattle Nov. 21—(P)—A few 1939 football statistical marks have already been gobbled up, but it appears that Michigan's Tom Harmon will have to stage a yard-eating fest against Ohio State Saturday if he's going to surpass his performance of last year.

American Football Statistical Bureau figures released today show Harmon ranking eighth as a total offensive threat with 1,059 yards, compared to his 1939 total of 1,356 which ranged him second to UCLA's Kenny Washington.

In rushing, Harmon will have to pick up 160 yards Saturday to draw even with his 1939 total of 865 which he compiled in 129 rushes. He's tried 161 already this year for 708 yards.

Meanwhile, the irrepressible Johnny Knolla of Creighton, took over first place as the nation's total offensive leader with 1,151 yards.

A sophomore, Jimmy Reynolds of Oklahoma A & M, ranks second to Knolla with 1,125 yards, with his 262 plays establishing him as the country's workhorse.

Al Ghesquiere of Detroit needs only 18 more yards Saturday to pass the 1939 mark of 882 rushing yards set by Wake Forest's John Polaski in 10 games.

Bill Sewell of Washington State College continues to lead the nation's forward passers in the number of completions with 65 passes in 137 attempts for 846 aerial yards. Sewell ranks sixth in total offense—gains both rushing and passing.

Paul Christman of Missouri the "passenger" of the passers, leads in attempts with 141 and his 864 aerials in eight games already passes the 1939 mark of 862 set by Kay Eakin of Arkansas in 10 games.

Krouse of Penn State is ranked third in pass receiving with 21 caught for 370 yards.

SALAMINIA WAS A XMAS GIFT

Baltimore, Nov. 21—Salaminia was once a Christmas gesture five years ago. Major Louis Beard, who handles racing interests of the Whitney family, was making up his Christmas list. Coming to the name of his friend Hal Price Headley, he made this note: "One untrained stud service to Man o' War." Headley sent his prize mare, Alcibiades, to Faraway Farm and the result of the mating was Salamina, 3-year-old filly and already winner of more than $35,000.

SPORT SPOTLIGHTING

By BILL RICE

"Heine" Kolpken, Dragon cage mentor, belongs to the 'Conceal Your Emotions' school so popular with the better coaches of the district, but he couldn't conceal a smile of satisfaction Tuesday afternoon when he got his first glimpse of "Chuck" Hoffecker, vaivisy football end, working out in basketball livery. Although Kolpken made no direct comment we won't be surprised to see the tall graceful courtster holding down a regular berth before the season is very old. Another lad who knows his way around a basketball is Johnny Pick, ambidextrous sharpshooter, who may turn into a good running mate for "Jap" Conroy. Then there are Martin Smith, Dick Johnson, Hammerbeck, Joy Hansen and several other holdovers from last year's reserves, as well as a fine crop of sophomores who are about ready for the first string squad.

The Warren tutor is starting his twelfth season, having come to Warren in 1929 and taken over the coaching job with the quintet of that year. The first three years of his reign were not impressive but since then the Diagonals have stepped out and gone to town, becoming one of the most feared teams in the district. Warren became a member of District Nine's League in 1933 and that season knocked off the Northern Class A section crown, losing the district title to DuBois. They won 18 and lost 7 and the following year had the same record but missed out for the championship. In 1935 they were not in the playoffs but won 18 and lost 8. The 1936 team won 13 and dropped 8 and in 1937 came one of the Blue and White's big years. They topped Kane, 29-24 to take the Northern Class A belt took up Mt. Jeet's Class B' gauntlet and flung it back to the tune of 41-26 crushed Punxsutawney for the District Nine title and then lost to Sharon, 38-28, in the state eliminations.

In checking the petitions from both Fulton and Juniata counties, we found that the market was very close, Leffler reported. "In the former there were only eleven more lawful signatures than required, and in the latter only 48. "We were astonished, however, to find that x x x there were in both counties a certain number of persons who either through ignorance or deliberately, tried to 'pad the ballot box' by signing more than one petition. Other minor irregularities were also detected and all ineligible signatures were counted out in arriving at the final status of the petitions.

Even where the doe season is ruled out, bucks with two or more points to one antler are fair game.

November 21 1920—The winners of the annual shooting contest held by the Kalbfus Rod and Gun Club are as follows: Ed Sweeting, R. D. Blanchard, Carl Russo, Ed Steeman, Robert Walters, Frank Gallagher, Guy Donahue, John Keenan, Harry Schmidt.

November 21 1920—Oil City High trimmed Warren 15 to 0 Saturday on the former's field principally due to a tuck shift and some deceptive plays. The Warren lineup was Love and Beigert ends Kelly and Peterson tackles Edris and Bloomquist guards Lundquist, center, Woodard quarterback, Haunesser and Main halfbacks and Dani fullback. Warren subs were Smith, Scalise, Schumacher, Carlson and Schuler.

The 1938 team blew into the section title because St. Marys' games were forfeited on account of an ineligible man but proved them right to represent the league with 33-26 and 41-22 wins over Mt. Jewett and Clarion, 26-21 over Sykesville for the district championship and then lost the inter-district to Farrell, 42-35. The 1939 team won the first half permanent but dropped the section crown to St. Marys. Last year the Kolpkenians although heckled by the loss of plenty of players at mid-year came through to win the second half permanent turned back Bradford to regain the Northern title stood off Mt. Jewett's Class B' challenge and then lost a thriller to Brookville, 19-18 for the District Nine crown. This season it looks like a three-cornered race between Johnsonburg, Bradford and Warren with a couple of other teams who probably won't be in there for the pennant but will be in a position to carry the leaders.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY: Somebody has killed Aunt Maggie, and ruined the houseparty. Sally and Bill are giving to celebrate Bob and Claire's engagement—not to mention the damage to Aunt Maggie. Now Sally has come downstairs to investigate on her own, and with Kirk, another guest who had been left on guard, is exploring the downstairs. But finding no clues.

Chapter 14

Crash In The Dark

KIRK strode forward, at the same time telling me to go back to the library. "Who's there?" he called.

I did go back to the library, but only to arm myself with the brass poker from the fireside. Then I rushed after Kirk, who was exploring the breakfast room.

As we opened the door into the passageway, we caught a fleeting glimpse of white, and it was all that I could do to suppress a scream. But it was only Pheasant.

How had he got out of that room again? Yes, the door was open. But we found no one inside. Of course, someone could have entered the office by the passageway door and have made his exit through the door opening directly from the office into the breakfast room and thence into the front hall or out the back door.

Or, entering from the breakfast room into the office, he could have come out into the passageway and have gone upstairs, downstairs, out the back door or back into the breakfast room from the passageway. Heavens, what a place that passageway became, when you considered all its possibilities.

Kirk and I opened doors and listened, but heard no sound.

Once again Plutarch was firmly put back into his hair. We returned to the library by way of the kitchen and dining room, but still saw no evidence to indicate that anyone had been about recently.

"Thank heaven, we both saw it," I said, as I replaced the poker.

Kirk joked about my weapon and at the same time reproved me from running into unknown danger. "Or perhaps," he said, "it was only someone from upstairs who changed his or her mind."

But discussion of this possibility got us nowhere, for why should anybody—any member of the house party, that is—mind running into any other member of the house party?

"I must go," I said, inspired with new urgency at the thought of some strange person wandering around opening doors, for Bill's door was unlocked.

"Wait a minute," Kirk cautioned, his voice dropping almost to a whisper. "Did you hear anything?"

We strained our ears against the beat of the rain, the lash of the wind. "I'll be back in a moment," said Kirk. "I'll take the flashlight instead of the lamp, so my approach won't be so obvious. Don't go moving around now and get me mixed up. Stay right here."

He went out through the dining-room doorway and, scarcely breathing, I sat waiting for his return. I didn't like being there alone. Suppose the murderer came in? Suppose Kirk was really the murderer, after all?

How long I entertained myself with such gruesome imaginings I do not know, but suddenly reality became rampant with the most horrible racket I have ever heard. It came from the hall, just outside the library door, and if all the demons of the netherworld had been unleashed there and begun playing football with the furniture, the noise—to my excited ears—couldn't have been greater, or the effect more demoralizing.

Bill Again

AS I stood, literally frozen in my tracks, I was certain all that horrible commotion in the hall could mean only one thing. The forces of good and evil had come together in mortal combat.

There, just outside the door, was the answer to all the inexplicable things that had been happening at Wisteria Hall. Believing Kirk to be in the middle of whatever was going on, and trying to screw up my courage to take a look, I practically faint when he came charging in from the dining room.

"What the hell?" he sputtered, when he saw me standing there like Lot's wife turned to salt. "Are you all right, Sally?"

There was a final crash in the hall, followed by what sounded like a great splintering of glass. Then, as the reverberation died down, there was a moment of dreadful silence when the whole house seemed as quiet as the grave, waiting to give up its dead.

"Did you see anybody?" asked Bob.

"No," said Bill morosely. "That was the trouble. I couldn't see anything, but I am sure it was a man, for whoever it was gave me a hefty shove to one side. I lost my balance and I think I crashed into a chair. Anyway, all the furniture on the place seemed to gang up on me."

"But what happened in the hall?" I had to know. "I never heard such carrying-on in all my life."

"Yes," said Kirk, "are you sure you actually ran into someone and not just a chair?"

"Of course, I'm sure," Bill replied indignantly.

"Did you see anybody?" asked Bob.

"No," said Bill morosely. "That was the trouble. I couldn't see anything, but I am sure it was a man, for whoever it was gave me a hefty shove to one side. I lost my balance and I think I crashed into a chair. Anyway, all the furniture on the place seemed to gang up on me."

"I threw out my arms, grabbing with both hands, to try to break my fall and my right hand struck that confounded mirror and brought it down on top of me. Practically brained me and didn't help my hand either," he complained bitterly, taking stock of his injuries.

What scene of carnage we had anticipated would be difficult to describe, as am sure I half expected to find Bill in the middle of an army, fending off attacks from all sides; but if there had been an army, he had it fully routed.

For there was only Bill himself, grim enough in his struggle to extricate himself from the wreckage of what had been one of a pair of beautiful Chinese Chippendale gilt mirrors. Two chairs and a table, apparently, had been pretty well mixed up in the melee, the tall vase of gladioli had been upset but had not broken and flowers and glass from the mirror were scattered in all directions.

"Watch out, don't get cut," Bill warned, as I rushed forward to fling myself upon him, crying out to know if he was badly hurt.

"Was it you I ran into just now?" Bill demanded of Kirk.

"Ran into?" Kirk echoed blankly.

"Yes, here at the foot of the stairs."

"I was back in the kitchen," Kirk explained, "I had thought I heard a sound from that direction and had gone to investigate. Then I heard all this—"

"Well, let's don't stand here then," Bill cried, galvanized into action in spite of his injuries. "I ran into somebody. Let's go after him."

"All right," Kirk agreed with alacrity. "But which way do you think he went? I saw no one."

"I don't know," Bill admittedly dazed, putting his hand to his head. "I was right at the bottom step. Probably he went through the dining room door. That's nearest the stairs. I'll go that way and you go through the breakfast room, Sally, stay in the library. If anyone comes in, hit 'em as hard as you can with that poker and yell like hell."

Fruitless Search

AS THEY gathered up lights for their scouting expeditions, two calls came from the upstairs hallway. "What's going on down there?" in Bob's voice, which sounded quite agitated, while Eve inquired acidly whether anybody ever slept in this house. Looking upward, I could see the tiny flames of their candles pricking the darkness overhead.

"Bill ran into someone," I explained, shakily.

"What's that?" Bob asked. And, "Why didn't he look where he was going?" from Eve.

Then I could hear Bob trying to persuade Eve to go back to her room and lock the door, while he came down to aid the searching party. "All right," she finally agreed, "but you must come in later and tell me all about it."

I was still in the hall, the lamp which Kirk had handed over to me swaying at an angle of goodness knows how many degrees, when Bob reached the late bathtime. "Gosh," he exclaimed, "what a shambles! How many killed and wounded?" And then without waiting for a reply, "Give me that lamp and let me take a look around."

"You'd better warn Bill and Kirk," I cautioned, "or you may get killed. They told me to stay in the library. Don't let them mistake you for the murderer."

"Murderer?" Bob repeated, stopping and staring down at me, as though he had just realized the significance of all that had happened. "Not a pretty word," he agreed. "But we have had a murderer, so there's bound to be a murderer."

Eventually the three searchers came back to the library fire, greatly disgruntled that they had found no trace of any trespasser.

"Oh, Bill, darling," I cried at the sight of the lump already swelling on his forehead. "How terrible."

"Did you know that you left me in the bedroom without a sign of a candle?" Bill inquired in that long-suffering tone which is so annoying when you already know yourself to be in the wrong.

"Oh," I confessed contritely, "I never thought of that."

"What I can't understand in the first place," Bill went on sternly, "is what you came downstairs for."

"Sally was worried about Mrs. Amblor," Kirk explained. "We went in to see that she was all right and afterward I forgot to replace the lamp. I'm terribly sorry, old man. That looks like a pretty bad bump on your head, too."

"But what happened in the hall?" I had to know. "I never heard such carrying-on in all my life."

"Yes," said Kirk, "are you sure you actually ran into someone and not just a chair?"

"Of course, I'm sure," Bill replied indignantly.

"Did you see anybody?" asked Bob.

SECOND DRAFTEE

William Roman, R. D. 2, Pittsfield, is the second man selected from Warren county for a year's military training under the selective service act, having been chosen by local draft board No. 2 as the first conscript to be called. He will probably be inducted into the service next week.

TO ATTEND MEETING

In addition to those mentioned elsewhere in this issue, Miss Ethel Baldensperger, of this city, will attend the meeting of state, municipal and local finance officers, to be held Friday and Saturday at State College. Miss Baldensperger will represent the office of Harry C. Johnson, tax collector.

RAILROADS TO PAY

The Public Utility Commission today directed the Pennsylvania and Erie Railroad Companies each to pay $106.25 to Mercer county toward the $425 paid by the county to satisfy property damage claims resulting from grade crossing improvements, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. The improvements were made on state highway route 238 in Fayette township, about four miles south of Greenville.

FIND MORE JOBS

The State Employment Service filled 3,241 job openings during the week ended November 8—eight percent more than in the preceding week—Lewis G. Hines, secretary of labor and industry, reported today. The number brought the total of placements for the year to more than 143,000, as compared with 115,000 in the corresponding period last year. Hines' report followed one of the Department of Public Assistance showing that the number of Pennsylvanians dependent upon some form of governmental aid had dropped from 1,837,000 in February, 1939, to 1,139,000 last month.

Mayor P. P. Hoening of Titusville and E. J. McDonald, president of the Titusville Chamber of Commerce, said their community was well satisfied with its artesian well supply.

Dr. Abel Wolman, chairman of the Maryland Water Resources Commission, did not recommend any specific plan, but said Pittsburgh's supply could be improved by moving the intake rotary point above the Kiskiminetas' entrance into the Allegheny, and that by going above the confluence of the Clarion river and the Allegheny, at Parkers Landing, the purity would be even greater. Wolman appeared at the city council hearing at the request of Scully.

According to the National High

Ways and Means Committee, the spee

Informed sources added that German fliers had dropped more than 100,000 kilograms (221,000 pounds) of bombs on Birmingham and 30,000 kilograms (66,300 pounds) in raids last night, and also attacked Bristol, Liverpool, Southampton and southeastern coastal harbors.

Italian air activity was said to
